Voter Residency

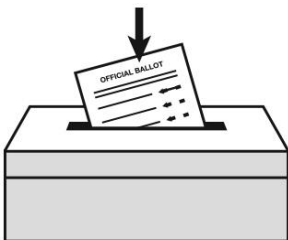

For Voters Affected by Tropical Storm Helene

- In North Carolina, you must have lived at your residence as of 30 days before the election to vote there — by Sunday, Oct. 6.

- If you move by Oct. 6 with no intent to return (or you're uncertain), you can register to vote in your new location.
- If you move after Oct. 6, even with no plans to return, you should vote using your prior residence.

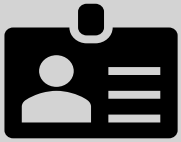

For temporarily displaced voters:

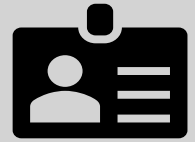

If you are only moving temporarily and plan to return, keep voting using your prior residence.

Voter Photo ID

For Voters Affected by Tropical Storm Helene

If you lost your photo ID due to Helene, you have options:

- Fill out a Photo ID Exception Form at your voting site or send the form back with your absentee ballot. (A blank Exception Form will arrive with your absentee packet.) Check the box for “Exception 3: Victim of a Natural Disaster.” Make sure to sign the form.
- Go to your county board of elections office. If you are a registered voter, they can take your photo and print an acceptable ID on the spot. For details, go to www.ncsbe.gov/voting/voter-id or use the QR code.
- Get a free ID from an NCDMV office in your area. For details, see the NCDMV's Photo ID page through the QR code:

For details about North Carolina’s photo ID requirement, including a list of all acceptable IDs, go to BringItNC.gov.

Absentee Voting

For Voters Affected by Tropical Storm Helene

- If you are displaced, you can request an absentee ballot to be delivered to your new location.

- If you have already requested an absentee ballot and need it to be sent to a new location, contact your county board of elections to spoil your current ballot and reissue a ballot to your new location.

- Request an absentee ballot online at the North Carolina Absentee Ballot Portal.
